One morning, Jack woke up early. He remembered that he was going to have an English exam today. Jack was not prepared, so he decided to pretend to be sick.

Jack went to see the doctor. When he arrived at the clinic, a nurse asked him, 'Are you sick, my poor little boy?'

Jack answered, 'Yes, I feel dizzy and I have a runny nose.'

Then, the nurse let Jack see the doctor. The doctor examined him. After checking Jack's temperature, the doctor smiled and said, 'You need to have an injection.'

Jack did not want to have an injection, so he told the doctor the truth. The doctor called Jack's mother, and his mother scolded him. Finally, Jack went back to school and wrote the English exam.
