After the robbers stole the wrong briefcase, their boss got very angry so he scolded them loudly. He then decided to plan another big job—a robbery at Big Bank.

The next morning, a police officer ordered all his policemen to look at the photos of all the wanted robbers. The first wanted robber was in a leather coat and wore a long ponytail. The next robber was in a blue and black checked suit and with sunglasses.

Two hours later, the boss and the robbers drove to Big Bank. They were armed with dangerous weapons. With their pistols in their hands, the robbers entered the bank. While the boss was looking for the manager, the tall man and the short man were robbing the hostages of their money and i-Phones and cutting off the alarm.

Suddenly, the tall man found a big safe. He shouted out to his boss that he had found the safe. While this was happening, one of the hostages called the police secretly. But the short man saw this and killed the hostage. The rest of the hostages were scared to death.

Fortunately, the police were aware of the robbery since the hostage had already made the call before she was shot. Soon, the police arrived. The robbers were surrounded by the police. The police found heavy weapons on the robbers, so they had to call the SWAT Team for backup.

When the SWAT Team rushed into the bank, the robbers tried to fight back, but they couldn't because the robbers didn't have enough power to fight the SWAT Team. Finally, the boss of the robbers was killed by the captain of the SWAT Team. The tall robber and the short robber were arrested and later sent to prison for years.
