

A Genie From the Wardrobe

5A Ng Wing Tung, Azal

One day, Eric and Alan were playing a ball game when the ball rolled away into the forest. They went into the forest to find the missing ball. The sun had sunk into the dark forest and the moon had come up. They were lost. Then, they found a castle. Alan said, 'Let's go into the castle. Maybe someone is inside.' Eric agreed. They slipped into the castle.

Nobody was inside the castle. Eric and Alan went up the stairs carefully, fearing that there might be some traps. They found a room and opened it. They slipped into the room. There was nothing but just a wardrobe, a picture of an angry girl and a window. The wind was growling and grumbling, which made the boys afraid.

As they walked each step into the room, the floor creaked and creaked. Alan said, 'Maybe th-th-ere is food inside. Let's o-open i-it.' They opened the wardrobe a bit and peeped what was inside. Suddenly, a genie appeared. Alan shivered and shook. In a trembling voice, he shouted, 'There is a genie!' Eric couldn't stop his teeth from chattering. The boys stood still as statues. The genie flew around them. The boys were so scared that they let out a scream that rattled the window panes. Then, they fainted.

When they woke up, they found they were sleeping on a fluffy bed. A princess was sitting next to them. They knew that she was the missing princess on the news. The bad genie had turned the princess into a picture. Only a scream could make the genie die. The princess said, 'Thank you for your help! I can grant you a wish.' The boys said, 'We wish that we can go home.' The princess ordered her guards to take the boys back to the town by carriage. Eric and Alan then lived a happy life.

One day, Eric and Alan went on a hike. Unfortunately, they lost their way. They tried backtracking to find the way out, but it did not work.

Luckily, they found an abandoned and spooky castle. 'I'm starving. There may be some food in the castle,' suggested Alan. 'Are... Are you sure?' asked Eric shakily. 'Come on. Let's go in. Don't be a fraidy cat,' said Alan. Although Eric agreed, he shivered and shook. As they crept into the castle, the floor creaked because it was too old. The castle was silent like a grave.

There were many rooms, but one of them looked strange. Eric and Alan courageously slipped into the room. The wind grumbled and rumbled like a big animal. They saw a wardrobe in the room and hoped there was some food in it. They opened the wardrobe and peeped inside. Suddenly, a genie popped out. Alan and Eric screamed and jumped. After they calmed down, the genie said to them cheerfully, 'I am the owner of this castle. Thank you for freeing me!'

At last, the genie granted them a wish as a reward. They wished to go home, and it came true. They lived happily ever after.

One day, Jack woke up in the morning. He thought about his exam and remembered that he hadn't studied for it. Mum went into his bedroom and gently reminded Jack, 'It is time to wake up.' Jack replied, 'I feel sick.' Mum immediately took him to the clinic.

Inside the clinic, a nurse asked, 'What symptoms do you have?' 'I just feel sick,' Jack said. The nurse performed medical checks on him, but he was healthy. The nurse started to think that Jack was not sick.

After that, the nurse told Jack's mum to punish him. Mum finally knew that Jack was pretending to be sick. Mum was furious. She marched to Jack, but the nurse stopped her. She had a better idea. The nurse whispered to Jack's mum. Mum did what the nurse told her to do. 'Jack, you have to take a lot of medicine,' Mum said. Jack hated medicines, so he decided to tell the truth.

In the end, Jack said 'sorry' to Mum. Mum punished him on the way to school. All the students laughed at Jack.

One day, Jack woke up in the morning. He was in terror. 'Oh no, I forgot to study for the exam. What should I do? I've got an idea! I can pretend I'm sick! But I'm also apprehensive that Mom will find out the truth. I got nothing to lose. I have to try,' he said. When Mom walked into Jack's room, he instantly acted to be sick and started coughing. His mom said, 'Oh darling dear, are you sick? Mommy will bring you to the clinic. You're precious to me!' So his mom took him to the clinic.

The nurse said, 'Hello, welcome to Sunshine Clinic. What is your name, age and what's the matter with you?' Jack said, 'I have an infection, a zombie infection, and I also have a cough too. I'm turning into a zombie! What can you do for me, Nurse?' She knew that Jack was lying about his illnesses. Therefore, she tried to teach Jack one big lesson that he would never forget. The lesson was about not making imaginary illnesses.

The nurse said, 'Here let's help take an injection!' Jack said, 'But I'm scared of needles.'

'You still need to take the injection!' said the nurse. Jack screamed. But the needle was just a fake one. Jack was crying and he pleaded for forgiveness. He would never do this ever again.

One day, Jack woke up in the morning. As he woke up, he quickly remembered he had an exam! He panicked as he thought, 'Oh, no! What am I going to do? It's the exam today and I didn't study at all!' All of a sudden, Jack grinned broadly. He tip-toed to the bathroom and used some hot water to wash his face so he could pretend he had a fever. He went back to his bed and his mum burst into his room as she yelled, 'Jack Parks! Get up now! You have an exam!' Jack said in a low voice, 'Mum, I feel sick...Can we go to the doctor?' His mum answered worriedly, 'Of course, darling! Get changed. I'll wait for you in the car.'

Soon enough, Jack changed into his clothes and went in the car with Mum. As she drove swiftly, she said, 'Are you sure you're sick, sweetheart?' Jack nodded. Mum said, 'Oh gosh! I have a meeting in an hour! You have to go in by yourself!' Jack had a sudden ache in the chest because of nervousness. He stuttered out some words, 'O-Oh!' After about twenty minutes of heartache, they arrived. Jack got out of the car. He waved at his mum and went into the clinic. He clenched his fists tightly and worried constantly. One of the nurses noticed that and asked him, 'Are you sick?' Jack said in a nervous voice, 'Yes, I am.' The nurse responded, 'Alright then, come with me.'

In no time, the nurse asked him, 'What's the matter with you?' Jack answered, 'I feel dizzy, and I am sweating!' She immediately knew he was lying and thought, 'What a waste of time!' Jack stared at the nurse as she wrote the prescription down. The nurse said, 'You require special medicine, Jack. You'll need an injection too.' Jack's heartache was even more serious now. She said, 'Jack, stay here while I get the syringe and your medicine.' Jack nodded and when she left. Jack was panicking.

Very soon, the nurse got back with the syringe and the medicine. Jack was trembling. She said kindly, 'Don't worry. It'll be fast. Jack was about to faint with nervousness! When she was going to inject the shot, Jack shouted loudly, 'I'm not sick! I am just pretending to be sick!' She smirked and said amusingly, 'I knew all along!' Please give me your mum's phone number. I'll call her.' Jack gave it to her and when he saw his mum burst into the room, he was terrified.

Jack's mum shouted, 'Jack Parks! We're going back to school this instant! Come on! In the car!' Jack was very embarrassed and he got in the car. Ultimately, he took the exam but failed miserably, and his mum scolded him for two weeks.

Yesterday, Jack didn't go to school because he was sick. His mum took him to see the doctor. When he knew that the doctor might give him an injection, he was scared and decided to tell the truth to Mum that he pretended to be sick to avoid going to school. He whispered to his mum, 'I argued with my classmate. I feel unhappy and do not want to go to school. I am sorry, Mum.' His mum didn't scold him but hugged him instead. Jack felt ashamed for lying and he promised that he would not do it again. Jack learnt that it is always good to share with your parents. He felt much better after talking with his mum.

Then he peeped inside the castle and went in. The floor creaked when he walked. He found a wardrobe and heard someone saying, 'Get out of my castle!' His teeth chattered.

Alan on the other hand waited for a long time outside the castle. When Eric realized that he was rescued, he went to the forest quickly and took Alan back home.

But Alan did not hear the 'carefully' part. He made his wishes immediately. 'I want a toy car, a new phone and a T-shirt,' said Alan. However, Eric wished to get out of this mess and he just wanted to go back home. 'Hmmm, ok then. Your wishes will come true,' said the genie with a snap of his finger.

At the end, both of them got what they wanted. Eric got to go back home safely. But Alan was still lost in the forest together with his toy car, his new phone and a T-shirt.

5E Ngan Wai Shuen, Abigail

Good morning. Today I am going to do a short presentation on Arctic Ground Squirrels. There are some fun facts. First, I am going to talk about their physical appearance. They are brown with white fur on their tummies. They are 30cm to 39 cm tall. They weigh from 550 g to 880g.

Arctic Ground Squirrels have special abilities to get away from the cold. They store dry grass and nuts for winter. They hibernate seven months of the year. They have a special part of their body that makes them warm up during hibernation.

I hope you found my presentation about arctic ground squirrels interesting.
